

We would love to have you join our staff of dedicated therapists to provide therapy to adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse.

We offer:

- Part-time flexible schedule
- The ability to provide therapy that is unhurried and targeted to the client's own pace
- Supportive collegial culture
- Stipend for continuing education
- Opportunity to lead and co-lead therapy groups
- Deeply satisfying work of walking with survivors on their journey to healing

Here's what our current therapists have to say about working at Roanoke Park Counseling:

Roanoke Park Counseling offered me everything I was hoping for in resuming a therapeutic practice; a chance to work in the trauma field, a supportive team of professionals to work alongside and consult with, and a part-time schedule.

- Julia Laibson

In private practice there are no meetings or check-ins and isolation starts to become a real threat, so it feels connecting and humanizing to see faces of other therapists and feel validated in the work, normalize the struggles, and stay in the loop about WA state changes to policy/licensure/etc.

- Marissa Grasmick

Roanoke Park Counseling is unique in that when long-term therapy is indicated, it is possible. The staff are skilled, and the support from management is fantastic.

- Marcia H.

For over 35 years, Roanoke Park Counseling (formerly Shepherd's Counseling Services) has been providing therapy to adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse. We recognize that the path to healing from sexual abuse can be a long journey and we allow survivors to stay in therapy for the time it takes to heal. Because we are not dependent on funding sources that may dictate treatment methods, we consider the individual needs of each survivor to deliver the best care.

We also recognize that treating complex trauma requires support and consultation. We prioritize the needs of our therapists and provide monthly staff meetings, on-going consultation, education, and a stipend for continuing education.

We manage all of the client intake process (including paperwork), insurance, and account billing allowing therapist to do what they love – providing therapy to clients.

We prefer fully licensed therapists who have experience treating complex trauma but will consider associates with interest and experience treating trauma (and offer supervision toward licensure).
